Mark Hart Announces Endorsement of the Associated General Contractors of Kentucky

"The Associated General Contractors of Kentucky Political Action Committee unanimously supports Mark Hart for State House in Kentucky's 78th District," said Executive Vice President Richard Vincent. "Mark Hart understands the issues currently facing businesses throughout Kentucky. He is a strong advocate for improving worker safety and educational opportunities for those in the contracting community. We know that Mr. Hart will continue leading the charge against job-killing bureaucracy and regulation."

The Associated General Contractors is the leading organization in Kentucky's commercial construction industry. The AGC provides a full range of services for over 700 member companies throughout Kentucky, including professional development, safety programs, and legislative insight.

"I am thrilled to receive the endorsement of the AGC of Kentucky," said Hart. "They are leading the way in promoting and improving the commercial construction industry and have done so for nearly a century. It is an honor to have the support of such a reputable organization."

Mark would like to express appreciation to Agriculture Commissioner James Comer and Congressman Thomas Massie for their continued support

Court considers revamping bid qualifications for bridge projects

By BECKY BARNES, Editor
Members of the Harrison County Fiscal Court agreed Tuesday night at a special meeting in Berry to review the county's requirement for bridge contractors to be pre-qualified through the state.
Magistrate Bradley Copes told the court that none of the surrounding counties require inclusion on a state contractor list.
"I think we would get more bids," Copes said.
Harrison County Judge-Executive Alex Barnett countered that having the requirement insures quality and reputable bids.
"I don't think it's a bad idea to be pre-qualified," Barnett said.
Copes said that although the pre-qualification requires that a performance bond be held by the contractor, the county is only receiving a bid bond.
If the bridge fails in five years, it would be the county's responsibility to make repairs, not the contractor, Copes said.
Magistrate Brad Marshall suggested that the road committee research the pros and cons of having pre-qualified contractors and get back to the fiscal court at its next meeting.
In other business, the court:
•Rescinded a previous approval for replacing the Whalen Lane bridge.
•Agreed to advertise for bids to have the Whalen Lane bridge deck replaced with new specifications available at the county judge's office.
•Awarded bids to James T. Chambers for the purchase of two 2015 Mack trucks. Chambers was the only bidder for the trucks. He agreed to pay $128,600 for each truck.

•Announced that a suitable date for moving the next meeting of the court from Nov. 11, which is Veterans' Day, to another day, could not be set. The court will meet on its regular date and time.
•Discussed issues at the Flora Shropshire Animal Shelter in regards to cats and the cat room.
Barnett said there is a ventilation problem in the cat room. It has been suggested that some of the cats are getting respiratory infections due to the lack of ventilation.
The shelter committee is going to look at the situation and report back to the commission.
•Announced that Robert Gaunce has earned his CDL and would receive a $1 an hour raise.
•Announced that a Champions for a Drug Free Harrison County will have a community meeting on Monday, Nov. 17, at Cynthiana Christian Church.
Pendleton County Sheriff Craig Peoples will have a program on suicide.
Harrison County Sheriff and Det. Mark Burden of the Kentucky State Police's Drug Enforcement/Special Investigations (DESI) will have a program on the heroin trend in Kentucky.
The meeting is open to the public.
•Heard Barnett report that there have been a series of issues with the Kentucky Heritage

Council with regard to the old courthouse renovations.
He advised that there was initially a list of four items that the council wanted done at the courthouse to preserve the historical integrity of the building. For complying, the county could receive tax incentives that would help recover some of the costs.
However, after the four issues were met, a second list detailed additional requirements to earn the tax credits.
Melody McClure, county treasurer, told the court the council wanted hardwood floors and 16-foot ceilings.
Those were two additional items that would cause the county to lose money on work that has already been done, Barnett said.
McClure and Barnett advised that even if the requirements were met, there was no guarantee that the county would earn enough in tax credits to cover the costs of re-work.
"It's going to look like a silo," Magistrate William Fritz said of the 16-foot ceiling in the vestibule.
The facilities committee is to go over the requirements and make a suggestion at the next court meeting.
•Heard Berry community residents discuss issues facing their town.
Sheriff Stephens was applauded for having a law enforcement presence in Berry occasionally.
•Announced that the traditional Berry Pre-Election Fish Fry will be held Saturday at the Berry Fire Department building.

Licking Valley Singers' fall concert is Nov. 7, 9

The Licking Valley Singers will present their fall concert on Friday, Nov. 7, and Sunday, Nov. 9, at Cynthiana Baptist Church. The concert honors America's history through songs of patriotism, war, protest and peace. Friday's concert, which begins at 7:30 p.m. will be free to veterans. All other tickets will be $10. Following Friday's performance, a reception will be held for veterans and their families. The Sunday performance, beginning at 2:30 p.m., will all be general admission seating with tickets $10 each. Advance tickets are available to Biancke's and will also be available at the door. Above, members of the choir have their final practice at Maysville Community College. Dress rehearsals will be held at Cynthiana Baptist Church.

Costly tools taken from diesel repair shop on Waterworks-Abdallah Road

By BECKY BARNES, Editor
Police are searching for clues in the theft of thousands of dollars in tools taken sometime between Oct. 15 and 16.
Sometime after closing on Oct. 15 and opening
Chamber membership breakfasts Nov. 5
The Chamber Membership Breakfast is Nov. 5, at 8 a.m. at Biancke's Restaurant.
Dr. Greg Cooper and Allison Lankford will have information on the Harrison County Community Fund, which is part of the Blue Grass Community Foundation. Attendees will hear how the fund works, how to make contributions, and how to apply for grants to be awarded to our businesses and toward the improvement of Harrison County. These are funds which have been earmarked for our community only.

on the 16th, someone kicked in the side door to Johnny Phillips' diesel service shop at 122 Waterworks-Abdallah Road.
According to Cynthiana Ptl. Jeff Thomas, it appeared the thief left the building through a rear door then walked toward the railroad tracks.
He said he was able to collect evidence that indicated the suspect crossed the tracks.

"I trailed him that far," Thomas said.
Missing from Phillips' diesel repair shop were numerous Snap-On and Mac brands of air tools and hand tools.
"They took the shiny stuff," Thomas said.
Thomas said the case remains under investigation and asks that anyone with any information call the Cynthiana Police at 859-234-7100.

MAKE YOUR INFANTS WEIRD THIS HALLOWEEN

It's scary sometimes what the internet teaches me about myself. When just browsing on the web, I try to resist clicking links to the teaser articles that have numbers in their headlines. You know the types of 'articles' I'm talking about: "7 Oscar-winning actors who started out as slasher movie victims"; "The 12 greatest horror movies you've never seen"; "8 words about 12 high-calorie deserts from 21 greasy spoon cafes in the American south." Before you even click the mouse button, you know you're in for the old bait-and-switch. The article will be tucked away somewhere in the middle of a page with confusing directions about how to navigate through it. And no matter where you click the page, you're all but guaranteed to find yourself on the web site dedicated to the latest revolutionary treatment for irritable bowel syndrome. Speaking of irritations, it is a personal peeve to have to watch an ad before I can watch a movie trailer, which is also known as an ad. I'm not sure what it says about us, or the internet, that an advertisement can market itself to advertisers. But there are plenty of times I have considered praying for one of Moses' plagues to fall upon the person responsible for that idea — and a pox upon the Hollywood executive who dares to call that person brilliant. I wish I could take that moral high road. After all, this is my column, my personal soap box upon which I ascend to cast an unflattering light on these unscrupulous persons and reveal their obvious lack of shame. Alas, I cannot walk that road. I will give myself a bit of credit to recognize my imperfections, my own human tendency to tread the low road. All it took to remind me of my own shamelessness is when I succumbed to temptation and clicked on a link to one of those infernal internet slideshow articles I complained about earlier: "The Most Hilariously Inappropriate Halloween Costumes for Babies" by

Josh Shepherd
News Writer

And be proud of it...

Julia Lynn Rubin. If you have my sick sense of humor, check out the images at blog.petflow.com/inappropriate-baby-costumes. This article is not nearly the level of bait-and-switch that you get from the more irritating sites like Answers.com, by the way. But the moment I read that headline, I was hooked as fast as a bass to a nightcrawler. Oh what sites they had to show: •A child in a strait-jacket and Hannibal Lector muzzle strapped to a two-wheeler. • A man in a Jack Daniels bottle costume with his child dressed as a pack of Marlboro Reds. • A baby girl in a Hooters outfit.

•A child in a Christmas Tree car air freshener costume. •A child dressed as "The Dude" from The Big Lebowski. As I viewed these pictures, I had to ask myself: Would I be the kind of parent who would dress my unprotesting infant in a commercial cigarette pack costume for Halloween? I can't lie to myself or to you, my trusting readers. You bet I would - in a flat New York minute. I'd be the parent staring uncomprehendingly at the school principal while she tried to explain why my daughter's zombie Cinderella costume probably didn't need the pulsing veins in her neck. If I had had four kids, I'd have talked them into dressing as The Ramones from the movie "Rock-N-Roll High School." It's not an easy thing to admit to oneself. But like any good parent, I would have taken credit, and even some pride, for making my kids weird — A cool sort of weird, mind you. Especially on Halloween. And on even deeper reflection, that guy who figured that there are suckers out there whose greed would lead them to drop good money to advertise on my ads. That twisted individual — if I met him, I'd probably like him.

On a serious note: Please vote in the general election next Tuesday, Nov. 4. Contact the Harrison County Clerk's office if you don't know where to vote. Showing that we will never compromise our freedoms is our most potent weapon against terrorist groups like ISIL at work in Syria and Iraq.

A ride to remember: 25 miles to a cure

By NANCY GREENE, GUEST COLUMNIST Cancer has touch all of us in some way and we all want to help however we can. Madeline Sparks wanted more than anything to ride her horse, Emmitt, with her mother Jeanne in the NARTC trail competition, which was in September 2104. The ride would be held at East Fork Stables in Tennessee. East Fork Stables is part of The Big South Fork National Park. So a goal was set. Madeline would ride her "soul horse" Emmitt. Jeanne challenged her daughter to make this ride more than just a competitive trail ride. They decided to make this a ride to remember. Madeline would ride for a cure for breast cancer. Madeline, like so many others, has been affected by cancer; her grandmother died from breast cancer before Madeline was born. Donations from her ride would be given to the Susan G. Komen fund. They named the challenge "A ride to Remember; 25 miles to a cure." The donations were to be made through a web site called gofundme.com

Madeline Sparks on Emmitt during her NARTC trail road to raise money and awareness of breast cancer.

On Saturday morning as the riders prepared their horses for the competition, I got wind of Madeline and her story. From that moment on, I knew I had to get her story. Later Saturday evening after a pot luck dinner, the awards were presented for the one-day riders. Madeline received two second place awards in the junior novice division. After the ride briefing for the Sunday ride, one of the NARTC riders past the hat to collect money for Madeline's fundraiser. I then met with Madeline and her mom at their cabin. Sitting on the front porch, Madeline and her mom told me their story. She showed me a tee shirt she had worn with 40 names of people back home who had donated. Before I left, Madeline's mom counted the money that was collected by the riders. It was just over $400. Madeline had already collected $800 in donations at home. With the additional donations, she exceeded her $1,000 goal. Madeline and her family returned to Kentucky Sunday morning. She had accomplished her goal and then some. It truly was a ride to remember.

Local artist finding his way through new medium

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

When asked to talk about the subject matter in one of his paintings, local artist Ray Duke prefers to turn the inquiry back to the questioner. He enjoys it when his work evokes a response from viewers.

"It's not important to me that people get what I intended in a painting. I like hearing what my images make them think about," Duke said.

Duke has converted a small bedroom at the back of his home on Wohlwinder Avenue into a studio for his painting.

He has sold a few of his works here and there, but the majority of his paintings lie against each other against the rear wall. Thumbing through the collection, one is struck by the range of subject matter that he has painted. One of the pleasures of looking through these works is tracing Duke's development as a painter.

Even to people who do not have much of a background in the visual arts, it is still possible to recognize the development of a highly individual style. There is a great deal of movement and energy captured in these images. Thick strokes invite viewers to touch the canvas and appreciate the tactile sensations in his work.

Duke has been a practicing artist for decades. "Growing up, I have always been able to draw and work in clay," Duke reflected. Yet, he is a relative newcomer to oil painting.

When he first began applying himself as an artist in his spare time, his first devotion was to sculpting, which he had begun in earnest as far back as 1996 while he and his wife were living in San Francisco.

In his living room are impressive examples of his skills as a sculptor. Among them is a detailed scene of two baseball players falling over themselves to catch a fly ball. He's a fan of baseball, particularly of the San Francisco Giants.

Another is an almost mythic depiction of a beautiful woman with her arms open, an inviting expression on her face, and a scorpion's tail and pincers seemingly ready to strike.

Duke would have happily continued creating bronze sculpture, but it is a very expensive endeavor.

"It's not just that bronze sculpture requires a lot of money in materials to create the molds, it also costs a lot to reproduce the works for people who like them. Bronze sculpture is cost prohibitive as a hobby," Duke said.

He started to take painting seriously around November 2006. From an economic standpoint, it made better sense. A 4 x 5 canvas can run anywhere from $20 - $100.

If the subject matter calls for it, Duke uses wood canvases which are also not very expensive.

But in 2006, when he decided to switch his preferred medium to oil painting, there was one small hitch. He really didn't know that much about it.

But things were going okay for he and his wife, Karen, - enough so that he decided to leave his job and spend 17 months with a friend in Mazatlan, Mexico to teach himself to paint.

The city proved to be fertile ground for inspiration. The rich culture gave him numerous subjects to depict on campus.

Carnivale in Mazatlan, Duke said, is one of the best known in Mexico. Though it does not have the tourist crowds associated with those celebrated in Rio De Janeiro or New Orleans, it is a vivid spectacle.

He has several others in his personal collection in the studio. What captures the attention most in his work is the individual detail in the faces.

One of the more vivid examples of that work is one of his early paintings of a struggling family. The fatigue in the face of a mother raising a family alone stands in contrast to the belligerent expression on the face of her son, a toddler who is already adopting a sense of the false machismo that is a bane of male culture in that part of the world, Duke said.

Cynthiana artist Ray Duke in his studio with several examples of his paintings surrounding him, including works inspired by Keeneland, portraits of television personalities and some his earliest work from Mazatlan, Mexico

"I found that there was a steep learning curve when it came to developing skills as a painter. It took some time before I produced anything that I thought was worthwhile," Duke commented. "It may have leveled out a bit more, but the curve continues to go upward."

His development is like leaping from one rock to another to cross a stream, he said. "I can see the shore ahead of me, but I never get there. It always recedes."

The 2008 recession was an economic setback for Ray and Karen Duke. Relinquishing their home in San Francisco, the Dukes came to Cynthiana to where his wife's family resides.

"We're like Okie's from the Grapes in Wrath, but in reverse. We're economic refugees from California," Duke said.

But even in the midst of re-establishing themselves here in Cynthiana, Duke has found plenty of material to inform his paintings in Kentucky.

A source of enduring inspiration has been a series of nudes that he has interpreted in numerous ways. Recent experiments, which found their way to his living room wall, cast his nude model in the forms of two famous marble statues — Venus De Milo and Michaelangelo's David.

Two other works that have been displayed in regional art shows are powerful images of a female boxer preparing for a bout.

As with many artists, he hasn't sold many of his original works. But then again, he describes his work as more an avocation than a profession.

"It's something that I enjoy doing," Duke said. Interestingly, the pleasure that he derives from painting is in the completed work, not in the process itself.

"I find that the work can be enervating. It saps a great deal of energy. I usually just work about two to three hours - about the length of a playlist on my iPod - then I stop and rest," Duke said.

But when he finally comes to a point where a work is complete, there is a sense of release.

He'd like to sell more of his work, but the market is not the reason he commits time to creating his art.

"I have known that I have talent to draw and create. I don't want to live my life knowing that I have an ability and never used it," Duke said.

Ray Duke is always glad to meet new people and share his art with them. During art shows in the region, he is glad to break out a few examples from his growing body of work for people to see.

I retained Heather Fryman in Family Court several years ago. Heather was very efficient and knowledgeable and excellent in her representation of my case. She listened to the concerns I had for the welfare of my grandchildren.

The outcome of the proceeding was more than I imagined.

I am sure that I am not the only person Heather has represented in these kinds of cases.

Heather is one of the most personable people I have met, and she will surely be the kind of Family Court Judge this county needs. Heather is the best candidate for the position of Family Court Judge.

In Support of Sam W. Arnold, III for Family Court Judge

Our family has known Sam for many years. We have witnessed his caring and adherence to the law even when his clients weren't pleased to head the truth. He has represented many families including the children of those families and always with the best interested of those, innocent in the proceedings, first and foremost in his advice. I spoke with Heather Fryman, and she seems such a nice young lady. She did not practice Family Law in our community but a short time compared to her opponent's long service here. Her experience is in the Appellant Court in Frankfort, not in our communities and in our Family Court system. Appellant Courts and Family Courts are both parts of the Judicial System but that is where the similarities end. The written law is the law, but Appellant Courts deal entirely with such different guidelines and NOT IN ANY WAY, even similar to the Family Court Systems.

Sam has faithfully represented our families in the community for more than 40 years and is qualified, both as a continual member of our local judiciary system, but also as a father and grandfather, himself. Our family will be voting for Sam Arnold for Family Court Judge and I hope that you will consider the advantage of his experience in this community and his experience in the actual Court to whom we are electing our Judge. Thank you.

Election Day alcohol sales will be allowed in Cynthiana

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

All alcohol sales will be legal in Cynthiana during election day, said Cynthiana attorney John Lair at the regular city commission meeting Tuesday night.

After concluding a first reading of a city ordinance on alcohol and liquor sales in Cynthiana to align it with an amended state law, Lair confirmed that alcohol sales would be legal while polls were open on Nov. 4.

“State law has precedence since the city has not passed an ordinance that would prohibit its sale,” Lair said.

Apparently, there was some confusion about the legality of alcohol sales during the primary election last spring, according to city Commissioner Gary Bruner.

“Police officers need to be clear on the regulations so there won’t be any confusion next week,” Bruner said.

Though new state law permit election day alcohol sales, Lair pointed out that there is language that allows city and county governments to enact ordinances that would override the state’s position.

But even if the city commission agreed to take such an action, it would not happen before election day on Nov. 4, he said.

The ordinance also lowered the seating requirement for restaurants providing liquor by the drink from 100 to 50 persons. The annual renewal fee was raised to $630 a year.

At the conclusion of the city commission meeting, special recognition was given to Cynthiana Police Cpl. Walter Tapp who announced his retirement after 25 years of service on the force.

In a formal recognition ceremony, Bruner commended Tapp on a respected career as a local law enforcement officer.

Tapp was hired as a full time officer on Oct. 1, 1989. Prior to that time, he had been serving as an auxiliary officer, Bruner said.

In Aug. 1999, Tapp attained the rank of Corporal in the department and, a month later, earned his professional standards certification.

Tapp was recognized as an “Officer of the Year” and has a distinguished record of service to Cynthiana, Bruner said.

Tapp was presented his service revolver to keep as personal property.

In other business:

- The city commission approved the hiring of full time and part time telecommunications for the E-911 staff.
- The commission approved relaxing facial hair regulations on police officers participating in No Shave November fundraising effort.

The promotion will last from Nov. 1 through Nov. 30.

- Vandalism of city equipment is getting to be a problem, said Commissioner Jack Keith. One event has already cost the city $1600.

Keith requested that the city offer a reward to anyone reporting acts of vandalism, particularly to the fresh concrete that will be poured around Cynthiana as part of a major downtown improvement project.

- Commissioner Roger Slade said that city leaf pick-up will commence on Nov. 10. He urged city residents not to rake their leaves into the street gutters.

“Leaves can clog up city drains like concrete,” Slade said.

Residents who bag their fall leaves can arrange for immediate city pick-up, Slade said.

- Slade warned that salt supplies are still alarmingly low and continue to be a concern for this upcoming winter.

Root hosts October Omega meeting

Charlene Dawson, president, opened the October meeting of Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at the home of Linda Root.

Ten members and one guest were present. Dawson introduced member Bonnie Teater, who had the program for the evening.

Teater welcomed Horticulture Agent Jessica Barnes, who grew up in Connersville. She handles questions on trees, insects, fertilizer, fruits, and shrubs. She passed around the latest newsletter and other information concerning the do's and don'ts of taking care of trees. She also talked about soil conditions, and said the Extension service is available to anyone who calls or goes online with questions. Barnes then answered questions from the group. She was very informed on Harrison County plants.

Following the program, Dawson asked the secretary to call roll, and all answer with their mother's maiden name. The minutes were read and approved.

News from International informed Omega they were a Three Star Chapter for 2013-2014. This award was received in recognition of the work, service, and activities the chapter reported from last year.

Linda Root, treasurer, gave the monthly report, and bills were presented and paid.

The social committee made final plans for the Keeneland outing for Oct. 15. In honor of heart awareness, members were asked to wear red that day. This event included husbands.

The service committee announced a changed date to serve lunch to Clifton Village. The new date is Oct. 25, and members signed up to bring food for the residents. Also, members are asked to bring donations in November for the local clothes closets. Both clothes and money will be accepted.

Teater gave the Grey book review on official programs, programs from International, and original programs.

The November meeting will be at the home of Rosemary Lucas, with Cheryl Case in charge of the program.

Dawson led the chapter in the closing ritual and Mizpah.

Harrison County Republican Party 20th Annual Elephant Stomp took place Saturday, Oct. 25. The event was well attended and included speakers from local, state and national offices. One of the speakers was U.S. House Rep. Thomas Massie.

Blue Grass Energy now offers outage texting

Blue Grass Energy is pleased to offer a new program to its members -- outage texting. This new option will give members a faster, more direct way to report an interruption in their electric service.

After verifying the cooperative has their correct phone number, members can enroll in the program by texting "bgoutage" to 85700.

Then, if the member experiences a power outage, all they have to do is text "#out" to 85700, verify their location and their outage will be reported.

"Guided by our purpose of making life better, the cooperative way, we are always looking for ways to make things better for our members," said Chris Brewer, vice-president of Power Delivery. "Outage texting does that."

The new texting option will also allow members to check the status of their outage by simply texting "#status". The service will provide the most current information such as crew status and restoration times.

Participating members will also receive an automatic notice when power has been restored.

"We live in a real-time world and our members want real-time information," Brewer said. "Although we answer phones around the clock, they can get extremely busy during an outage, so texting provides an automated, immediate response that keeps members updated until power is returned."

For full instructions for outage texting, visit the cooperative's website at www.bgenergy.com and click on the outage tab. As always, you can still report your outage to Blue Grass Energy by calling 888-655-4243 or report it on their website.

Ode to Jack and the turnip

It looks like this late turnip crop is going to be a good one thanks to cool temperatures and adequate rain fall.

I may even have some little ones ready in honor of Halloween this year, too, even though they will only be salad size.

What does the turnip have to do with Halloween you may ask? Well, they just may be more authentic than that pumpkin on the porch.

Pumpkins have been for sale for weeks and children have decided on costumes, but somewhere in the middle of it all is the story of All Hallow's Eve.

Halloween, as it is known today, has its origins in something a bit more interesting than just pumpkin carving and candy collecting.

In fact, the evening's festivities marked the beginning of winter for the Druids, an ancient Celtic race.

The Druids were essentially reacting to a belief that the souls of the dead returned to wander among the living for one night.

The Druids would light huge bonfires and dress up to both acknowledge and scare the ghostly beings away from their homes.

When Irish immigrants came to North America, they brought All Hallow's Eve with them; their children brought the tradition of carving the Jack-o-lantern.

Irish legend has it that a drunkard named Jack was the first to carve a "Jack-o-lantern," back in Ireland it was carved from a turnip.

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

One day, Jack had a run-in with the devil and a legend was born.

After some shenanigans, Jack managed to trap the devil up in a tree by carving a cross in the trunk; he then proceeded to make a deal with the Devil and bargained for his soul before he would allow the Devil out of the tree.

The Devil promised not to take his soul, so Jack wasn't going to hell but he wasn't going to heaven either.

The deal resulted in Jack wandering between the two destinations, in eternal darkness.

When Jack crossed the devil's path once again, the devil threw a hot ember at him out of spite for tricking him up that tree.

In his cleverness, Jack quickly hollowed out the turnip in his pocket and placed the ember inside.

He now had a lantern to light his way as he wandered for eternity.

The Scots called their turnips "bogies" which gave way to the term "bogie-man" as children ran scared with their turnip lanterns on the night of All Hallow's Eve.

I wonder if this has something to do with the golf term "to bogey." Golf did originate in Scotland and a turnip and a golf ball and one over par ... well, you can see where this is going.

Anyway, because of the availability and ease in carving, the pumpkin became the "Jack-o-lantern" of choice for Irish immigrants in the New World and this is the tradition that persists today.

Pumpkins have been around for a long time, dating back to 7000 BC in the highlands of Mexico where they were prized for their seeds.

The flesh of the wild species was bitter so they were harvested as gourds for use as storage vessels, rattles and utensils. The flesh of the pumpkin wasn't used until after it had been cultivated for centuries.

The pumpkin became a staple crop, along with beans and corn, for many southwest and south-eastern American Indian tribes and its appearance figures into many tribal creation stories.

The Iroquois creation story names the pumpkin as one of the three vegetables that Mother Earth provided for the people in order to survive. It was grown among the corn that provided shade for the growing vine.

The pumpkin vine, in turn, acted as mulch for the corn and kept the weeds under control.

When the Pilgrims dined with the Wampanoag in the Northeast at the first so-called Thanksgiving they surely enjoyed roasted pumpkin seeds. So, don't throw away those pumpkin seeds after you carve your "Jack-o-lantern."

Pumpkin seeds make a delicious and healthy snack.

Let the seeds dry well before roasting them in the oven. Once dried, toss them with a little oil and salt.

Spread the seeds evenly on a cookie sheet and roast at 350 degrees until they are golden brown, tossing them about on the cookie sheet a couple of times in the process.

They are best when they are still a little bit warm.

Kentuckians show heart: 1.5 million registered as organ/tissue donors

"Margaret Mead famously said, "Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has."

The Circuit Court Clerks of Kentucky are a committed group of public servants who have a profound impact on the lives of those who need an organ transplant - patients like Kortney. "I'm here in the hospital and listed status 1A. It's hard for me to read or really even think. I am having trouble breathing and my kidneys are losing function," explains 30 year old Kortney Wanner. Kortney has been waiting on her heart-transplant for years and is getting to a point where the wait must end. "I know I'll get my transplant. I am staying hopeful and trying to enjoy the little things with my husband and family," says Wanner.

"Today over 1,000 Kentuckians are waiting for their lifesaving transplant. Their families wait too. Their parents, siblings, cousins and friends are all waiting. Now, these families know that 1.5 million Kentuckians stand behind them and are willing to save their life," explains Teresa Furnish,

Harrison County Circuit Court Clerk.

The Circuit Clerks and their driver's license staff make a significant impact by asking two important questions while residents obtain a license or ID. "We ask everyone if they would like to donate $1 for public education about the mission of donation, and if they wish to be a registered organ donor," explains Furnish.

This month, Kentucky reached a milestone in the fight to end the wait and save lives, like Kortney's. Over 1.5 million Kentuckians have joined the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry.

"Joining the Registry is very important. 1.5 million Kentuckians have now said, 'If I can save a life, after I'm gone, I'm willing to do it.' What a legacy. To save someone like Kortney, to save a family from loss, it means everything," explains Shelley Snyder, Executive Director of the Circuit Clerks' Trust For Life program. "This milestone is possible, in large part, thanks to the Circuit Clerks and their staff. Without their two questions, we may not have 50,000 names on the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry. Because of their efforts, over 1.5 million Kentuckians have registered. The impact of the Circuit Clerks is remarkable."

Over 123,000 patients are currently waiting for their organ transplant nationwide. Tragically each day, 18 people die waiting. Every registered organ donor is a symbol of hope for patients in need. Today 6,275 Harrison County residents are registered donors.

All Kentucky residents are eligible to join the Registry at their Circuit Clerk's office or online at donatelife.ky.org.

Regardless of age or medical history, everyone can join the Registry. If you have questions about donation, contact the Trust at 1-866-945-5433 or ssnyder@trustforlife.org.

The Kentucky Circuit Court Clerks' Trust For Life is a 501C(3) non-profit organization that informs, educates, and encourages Kentuckians to be registered organ and tissue donors to save lives.

JUMP ON THE BAND WAGON

Church

Desperation makes us fall

I was out hunting. I had gone down an old road. Then the road ended but I wanted to go further, so I started through the laurels.

First, I was bending over. Then I was on my hands and knees. Later I was crawling.

I ended up in a nice clearing.

Just before dark, I thought I had better start back. I really didn't want to do all that crawling again, so I decided to try a different route back.

I looked at this long steep slope. It looked hard, but I thought that it had to be easier than all of that crawling. I was about half way up when it got really hard.

It had rained the day before and this slope was covered in wet leaves.

I was constantly and repeatedly slipping and falling.

I thought "I've come too far to go back," so I kept going.

I really started getting tired. No, I was exhausted.

Out of desperation, I starting grabbing for anything I could get my hands on to help pull me up the steep, slippery slope. Many of the things I grabbed for broke off into my hand, or came out by the roots.

Other things that I grabbed had thorns, but I didn't really care, I was desperate.

Mike Barres
Guest Columnist

CALVARY ASSEMBLY CHURCH

Most of the things I grabbed didn't help me, they simply gave me a false sense of help, but made me fall even worse.

I finally made it to the top. I was exhausted and I thought about how many people reach out to things that hurt them and make them fall worse when they are desperate.

Proverbs 26:9 says, "Like a thorn that goes into the hand of a drunkard is a proverb in the mouth of fools."

The person who is desperate may turn to drinking, drugs, bad relationships, poor and impulsive decisions.

We would all be better off to wait on the Lord for His help and direction.

When I stopped and just rested, I started looking more wisely for things that would actually help me up the hill.

When we wait on the Lord, He will show us what to do. He will show us things that will actually help us instead of hurting us or making us fall even more.

Proverbs 3:5,6 says, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and lean not on your own understanding; In all your ways acknowledge Him, And He shall direct your paths."

James 1:5 says, "If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all liberally and without reproach, and it will be given to him."

The Bluegrass Pipeline presented grant checks for $2,500 each to Harrison County Emergency Management and the Cynthiana Rotary Club Tuesday afternoon. Emergency management will buy a new portable electric generator for first responders. The community grant to the Rotary Club will aid in the covering the cost of new basketball courts at Flat Run Veterans Park.

Prime preschoolers for the classroom with developmental games

(BPT) - While school prep is normally focused around kindergarten and elementary school students, increasingly preparations are occurring at much younger ages. Enhancing learning-based skills in preschoolers can be invaluable to their development and play is an essential role in early classroom experiences.

Developmental toys, like blocks and play construction tools, for example, have been very popular with children of all ages, creating problem solving situations and helping to spark creativity.

While building blocks have long been known to help young children develop motor skills and spatial awareness, toys such as the First Builders Spell School Bus by Mega Bloks also introduce kids to the alphabet and other classroom subjects. Learn more at www.megabloks.com.

Developmental psychologist and child play expert Dr. Maureen O'Brien is just one of the experts advocating this kind of play for preschoolers. "Studies have shown that when children are actively involved in putting letters together - compared to simply pointing and naming - their memory and recognition skills are improved" says Dr. O'Brien. "Reading experts know that combining learning and fun is a better way to build skills than simply memorizing what letters look like."

The same principles apply to math and other subjects, where construction toys like the 1-2-3 Learning Train from the Mega Bloks, can help kids get familiar with basic digits in a more hands-on way.

From giving kids their first taste of classroom subjects to helping them with motor skills and socializing, developmental toys like building blocks are a good way to help get kids excited at the idea of going to school. As they begin to mix learning and play, children will discover that school can be fun. They will be that much more ready and eager when it comes time to board the school bus.

Business

Southern States to open new showroom in November

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

After 67 years in the same general location, the Cynthiana branch of the Southern States Co-op will soon move to a new location on U.S. 27 South.

The showroom will open sometime in November, said store manager Dale Duckworth, but it will be low key.

The grand opening celebration will be this spring, he said.

"We're wanting to take things slow at first. Work out all the bugs. There's always things to work out when you move to a new place," Duckworth said.

As Duckworth explains the rationale for Southern States to relocate its place of business, the CSX train blows its horn and its cars rumble right outside his office window.

"I don't think I'm going to miss that," he joked.

But Duckworth also pointed out that the co-op chose its first location along Railroad Avenue and Water Works Avenue because the train ran right by the store.

"Back in the 50s and 60s, most of our bulk inventory was delivered by train car. In fact, the store often just parked a loaded freight car outside and dispensed feed directly from it," he said.

But that was a different time, when Water Works Avenue was a heavier-traveled road and trains were the primary source for delivery of supplies.

In the past decade, the original location has gone from being in a prime downtown location to being virtually invisible. Duckworth bet that younger people in the Harrison County area probably couldn't say where Cynthiana's Southern States Co-op is located.

"Local farmers and anyone whose business is in Harrison County agriculture know our location. They've always been our primary customers - and they always will be. But we need to be in a place where our showroom is more visible," Duckworth said.

In terms of business, though, this branch of Southern States has had a long history of continuous success. Duckworth credits the store's economic stability to its Lexington affiliation and, particularly, to the guidance of its local board of directors.

"Our branch is a true co-op run business. The beauty of the co-op system is that the leadership comes from our local farmers. It's run by them and, therefore, addresses their needs," Duckworth said.

Within the last decade, the store has expanded operations. In 2000, it bought property on Ladish Road to locate its bulk feed plant and bulk LP gas facility.

The new store location will give Cynthiana Southern States more room to grow. The expanded showroom will allow the business to expand its inventory and allow the store to provide new services to meet new customer demands.

"We'll experiment with marketing new products and services. Southern States is able to provide a wide range of home and garden supplies to meet the needs of people living in downtown as well as serving our farm families. We're hoping our new location will improve walk-in business and enhance our loyal customer base," Duckworth said.

However, the Harrison County farmers will always be Southern States number one customer, he added.

He anticipates the new showroom to be open for customers around mid-November.

Hospice of the Bluegrass names new president, CEO

ELIZABETH FOWLER

Elizabeth (Liz) Durst Fowler, MPH has been named President & CEO of Hospice of the Bluegrass. Fowler replaces Gretchen Brown who retired after 32 years.

Fowler has more than 30 years' experience in health care and non-profit administration. Prior to coming to Hospice of the Bluegrass, Fowler was with Hope Healthcare Services, a provider of post-acute healthcare services, including hospice, palliative care, PACE, home health, private duty nursing, adult day health and long-term care diversion services in Southwest Florida.

"On behalf of the board of directors, I am very excited to welcome Liz Fowler to Lexington as the new CEO of Hospice of the Bluegrass," said Hospice Board Chair Mark Nabity.

"It is an honor to join an organization with a strong legacy and a promising future. I look forward to embracing the special qualities of Hospice of the Bluegrass that has enabled the organization to be recognized as one of the finest hospice and palliative care programs in the country," said Fowler. "I'm committed to ensuring we will be a dynamic and progressive provider of care and services in each of the communities we serve for many years to come. Healthcare is changing, as well as the needs of our communities. I want to assure that the residents in the 32 counties we serve have the care they need when they are seriously ill. We will need to partner with many organizations and healthcare providers to do this in an affordable way."

Harrison County volleyball drops region opener to Lady Cards

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The Harrison County volleyball season came to an end Monday night as the Fillies lost to George Rogers Clark, 3-1, in regional play.

The loss marked the end of the volleyball career for the two Harrison County seniors, Amber Darnell and Haley Evans.

The Lady Cards defeated the Fillies, 2-1, in the regular season match on Sept. 16 and, despite some good play from Darnell and Sara Beth Sowder, the Fillies were no match for the Lady Cards on Monday night at Scott High.

Harrison County won the first set 25-21 as they were able to return some of the big hits from the George Rogers Clark's tall front line.

The second set through the fourth was another story as the Fillies fell behind early in each set by six to eight points. They battled back to a three or four point deficit before succumbing to the Lady Cards' pressure.

"They got some nice passes to their setter who put the ball in the right position for the big girls to slam it down," observed Coach Bill Faulkner. "We tried to return the ball but they were too powerful for us."

The Lady Cards won the last three sets 25-13, 25-13, and 25-15.

The loss left the Fillies with a season record of 20-15 while George Rogers Clark improved to 15-20.

The Lady Cards will advance to Wednesday's semi final where they will play the host Scott High Lady Eagles.

The 34-4 Scott High squad defeated Bracken County 25-12, 25-6 and 25-12 to advance to Wednesday's play.

The loss ended Bracken County's season at 16-15.

"We had a really good season with a young squad and we only lose the two girls," noted Faulkner. "We will certainly miss Amber and Haley but should return a good group to make a run at the region title next season."

Danielle Dunaway tips the ball back to the Pendleton County side of the net last week at Nicholas County High School. The Fillies volleyball team lost no matches in double 3-0 wins over Robertson County and Pendleton County to claim the 38th District Volleyball Tournament Championship.

Friday is Senior Night for HCHS football

The seniors on this year's Harrison County Thorobreds football team will be honored in festivities before the Woodford County game Friday night. The game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. with the ceremony slated for 6:45 p.m.

Tailgating will begin at 6 p.m., outside the entrance gate. It will be sponsored by Dr. Rick Arnold with Randolph Thomas and Matt Moore cooking hot dogs, steaks and other great eats.

This food is free for Harrison County fans as long as they are cheering for the Thorobreds. WCYN radio will be broadcasting from the tailgate beginning at 6 p.m. with Blake Bishop and Mike Aldridge.

The seven seniors on this year's squad are Harley Bruin, Jordan Kenney, Andrew Norfleet, Tyler Price, Greg Rife, Mark Taylor and Brandon Williams.

Harrison wrestlers return strong team for regional run

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Frank Sinatra sang the song "High Hopes" in 1959 but Old Blue Eyes didn't have anything on Harrison County wrestling Coach Luke Tucker.

The veteran coach and his assistants have a returning group that includes 10 state qualifiers from 2013-14 and a couple of newcomers that could make the Thorobreds a regional contender in every weight class.

Last year the Thorobreds finished third in the region behind Johnson Central and Montgomery County. The goal for the Breds is to pass these two and become region champs in 2014-15.

Four seniors return who were state qualifiers last year. They are Clay Arthur, Colton Mott, Mark Taylor and Brandon Williams. Add Noah Mitchell to the senior list of those that Tucker expects to return to the state tournament and it is quite an impressive group.

Juniors Colin Coy, Chase Highlander, Nathan Lopez and Kellon Newby were all state wrestlers last year and are expected to be top contenders again.

Christian Sinckler is also expected to wrestle for the first time and bring to the mat what last year's state contender Dominic Walker did in the heavyweight division.

was the only one of the Thorobreds to finish in the top eight last season as he wound up in the seventh slot. Mattox will move up a weight class this year but will still be counted on to return to the state meet for Harrison County.

Brent Hudgins was a state qualifier last year as a seventh grader and is being counted on again to lead the eighth grade class.

It is too early to have all of the weight classes worked out but Tucker is hoping to be able to have all of his contenders in different classes.

"It is too early to tell about the returning wrestlers as well as the six new people who have joined us so far," said Tucker. "We also could have more come out after football is over."

"If the correct pieces fall into place, we should have a great year. Eight of a possible 14 of our wrestlers ranked in the top 20 in the state. I hope that they will go out and live up to and improve on the pre-season rankings."

Tucker is assisted by Mitch Mattox and Josh Ashbrook with Barry Zumwaldt directing the Harrison County Middle School program.

The schedule is made up of who's who in Kentucky High School wrestling as the Thorobreds will visit such renown strong holds as Johnson Central, Woodford County, Simon Kenton, Louisville Central and North Hardin as well as battle the region contenders Sheldon Clark, Bourbon County and Montgomery County.

"Since we have a team full of veterans, we made the regular season more difficult this year," noted Tucker. "Of course, there is also the top group of teams that will be on the Hilltop for the Harrison County Rumble on the Hilltop in the early part of the season."

It is an ambitious schedule for the Thorobreds but one that Tucker feels can be a stepping stone to big things at the end.

Harrison County hosts annual Cross Country Invitational

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The Harrison County High School and Middle School cross country teams were the hosts of the annual Harrison County Invitational Meet last Thursday.

The meet, which was held at the Cynthiana Country Club, featured teams from Pendleton County, Grant County, Lexington Christian, Owen County, Nicholas County and Bourbon County.

The Harrison County Middle school teams had enough runners to compete for the team trophies finishing third in the girls' competition and second in the boys'.

Bourbon County won both races, which were 3000M, with Owen County runners up in the girls' race.

Allison Bourne of Owen County won the girls' division in 13:41.

Payton Doyle was the top finisher for the Harrison County Middle School girls as she was seventh of the 23 runners in 15:08.2.

Bailey Thompson was 9th, Megan Watts 15th, Jaelyn Terhune 19th and Morgan Cooper 22nd.

winner in 12:22.

Thomas Morris led the Harrison County boys' with a 7th place finish of the 21 runners involved in the middle school race in a time of 14:20.

Franky Jacobs was 12th with Jacob Morris 15th, Gannon Terhune 16th and Alec Davisson 17th.

Larry Jones Avery Whitaker and Bradyn Lukins also finished for the Harrison County Middle School team.

Neither the Harrison County High School boys nor girls had enough runners to compete for the team title.

Campbell County eliminates Fillies in region play 5-1

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Regional favorite and eventual 10th Region Champion Campbell County defeated the youthful Harrison County Fillies Wednesday evening.

The semi-final round of the tournament that was held in Winchester saw both Campbell County and Bishop Brossart advance over Harrison County and George Rogers Clark for an all 37th District final.

Campbell County then repeated as the 37th District winner by defeating Brossart 2-1 in the 10th Region finals.

The Fillies, after defeating Bourbon County in the region opener, were subjected to offensive pressure from the Lady Camels.

Campbell County scored the first goal nine minutes into the match. Seven minutes later, Holly Schwarber made a goal on a corner kick where she bent into the net untouched on what was a tremendous individual effort.

Schwarber is first team all region and the 10th Region all defensive player of the year.

The Lady Camels scored twice more in the first period to take a 4-0 lead into the halftime break.

The Harrison County squad reacted as they have all year and came out with a good effort in the second half despite the score.

"One of the things that I have been most impressed with this season is our ability to continue to play hard and battle regardless of the circumstance," noted Coach Kevin Gaunce. "We did that again tonight."

The last goal for

MIKE'S MINUTE

Life is short, then you're gone

St. Louis Cardinal outfielder Oscar Taveras' death Sunday made me think about how quickly a person can go from upright to six feet under.

Here was a 22-year-young man with an extremely promising future and everything to live for losing his life in a car accident along with his 18-year-old girlfriend. What a shame.

This was a terrible accident but as callous as it sounds "accidents happen."

The lesson to learn here is that while you on here on the earth in sound mind and

Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

mostly sound body, you need to act like this might be your last day on earth.

When I was a junior in high school, I was the president of the Baptist Youth Fellowship group at the First Baptist Church in Tell City. One of my duties in this position was to preach the sermon on Sunday night of Youth Day.

There is a book of sermons already printed, probably more than one book, and all I had to do was find a sermon that I wanted to use and learn it for the service.

I chose one that was about what a person would do if this was their last day on earth and they knew it.

Some of the scenarios were if you were a car dealer would you roll back the speedometer on a car or if you were a grocer would you try to pass off not-so-fresh food for fresh etc. It was a big hit, at least within my family except for maybe my uncle who was a car dealer.

The reason for this sermon that I seem to be writing now is this: Things are tough in football this year.

Harrison County has not won a game and there are multiple reasons for it, not the least being irregular attendance at practice by some of the players.

There is also the tough schedule with at least three opponents who will go deep into the playoffs and may even be state champs in their class.

I have already heard and continue to hear talk about a new coach and/or cleaning house with the assistants, which will remedy all woes.

Well, let me tell you while some change needs to be made, it certainly is not in the head coach position.

Granted it would be better if Jim Carr was a teacher in the school system or at least be in the system, which could happen if the right people were interested in improving the program.

But to place the blame on one man would be totally unfair and not correct.

So to be short and to the point about my feelings on this situation here it is.

Before you are too critical think before you speak.

Are you able to say something that is positive for the program or just what shouldn't have been done by someone else?

Anyone can look at a burnt steak on the grill and say that it should have been taken off sooner.

It is always easier to not do anything to help and then sit back and be critical of those who are trying to do a job. Try to think about what you would do if this were your last day on earth.

It surely will make a difference.

CYNTHIANA POLICE DEPARTMENT

Case reports

Oct. 13 -- At 9:22 p.m., a complaint was made that Charles D. Tucker allegedly collected money from a fund-raiser jar that was to benefit the children whose parents died in a home on Grays Run Road. The fund was $15.30 short. Tucker told police that the money got lost in his car but that he found it and turned it over to police to give to the person who started the fund. Tucker was advised not to collect the money again.

Oct. 14 -- At 3:32 p.m., police were called to Cash Express where it was alleged that Jonathan O'Connell attempted to cash a $300 on an account that was not his. The account belonged to Chelsey Mattox. O'Connell told police he had been given the check by Mary Jane Brewer. However, Brewer said O'Connell had been at the house and must have taken a check that was in the residence by a previous resident. Police were seeking a complaint.

Oct. 16 -- At 6:03 p.m., police were called to Parkside Manor where two female residents had been involved in a physical altercation. The staff separated the two women.

Oct. 16 -- At 9:30 p.m., Kathy Fryman reported that someone had thrown a rock through the front window at 103 Oddville Ave. It was unknown who threw the rock.

Oct. 16 -- At 1:51 p.m., during regular patrol, an officer noticed a vehicle parked in a no parking area on Pleasant Street. A strong odor of marijuana was detected coming from the vehicle, according to the report, the passenger told police he had a small amount of marijuana. When Richie got out of the vehicle, a set of scales fell out. Richie was allegedly found with two plastic bags of a green leafy substance, Zig Zag green wrapper. A glass elephant pipe was located under the driver's seat. The vehicle was driven by Dustin Morrison. The case remains open and under investigation.

Oct. 17 -- At 5:05 p.m., police were called to a custody dispute on U.S. 27.

Oct. 18 -- At 11:14 a.m.,

Kathryn Critzer, reported that a pit bull was growling and barking so that she could not get out of her truck at her residence, 104 Pearl St. Animal control had to use a tranquilizer to subdue the dog and take custody.

Oct. 18 -- At 12:35 p.m., Leigh A. Jenkins, 124 Wilson Ave., reported that some of her medication, jewelry and cash were taken from her residence.

Oct. 19 -- At 5:24 p.m., a report was made from Ken's Fuel Express regarding an individual taking four cartons of cigarettes without paying for them.

Oct. 20 -- At 9:20 a.m., police were called to a Broadway Avenue residence for a possible drug overdose.

Oct. 20 -- At 2:53 p.m., police were called to the Justice Center regarding a man who was allegedly intoxicated. Norman Riser, Blackburn Road, was arrested and charged with public intoxication controlled substance (excludes alcohol).

Oct. 20 -- At 11:54 p.m., while police were serving a warrant on Steven D. Fogle II, in was allegedly found in possession of a marijuana cigarette, a rock-type substance identified as cocaine, a powder substance, a piece of cotton and a syringe. Fogle was arrested and charged with possession of controlled substance (cocaine) and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Oct. 21 -- At 2:54 p.m., police were at the residence of Matthew S. Taylor on Wilson Avenue to serve a warrant. Taylor gave consent to search and officers found a small bag in the bathroom containing an unknown crystal-like substance.

Arrests, citations, warnings

Oct. 18 -- David P. Wagoner, 21, was arrested at 103 E. Pleasant St. at Shell Apple Market

LEGAL NOTICE
COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY
COUNTY OF HARRISON

I, Linda B. Furnish, Clerk of the County, for the County and State aforesaid do certify that the Sample General Election Ballot for Harrison County printed above has been prepared, printed and posted in compliance with the Kentucky Revised Statutes and is to be submitted to the qualified voters within Harrison County at the General Election to be held on November 4, 2014.

Harrison County is split between the 4th and 6th Congressional District. The chart has the precincts listed beneath each block of candidates. You may only vote for the US Representative in your congressional district.

KRS 117.227 provides that the election officers shall confirm the identity of each voter by personal acquaintance or by document, such as motor vehicle operator's license, social security card, credit card or identification card that bears both the picture and signature of the voter. Your cooperation in this matter is appreciated.

Please check the Secretary of State's website www.sos.ky.gov for the Voter Information Center to see if you are registered to vote. It will have your precinct and directions to your polling location. Check www.harrisoncountyfiscalcourt under county clerk for absentee voting requirements, voting locations, magisterial maps, instructional video on the voting machine etc. Be an informed voter. Find out if you are registered, where you vote, and know who will be on your ballot before election day. As always, we will have a demo voting machine available for practice in the clerk's office.

IN WITNESS THEREOF, I have here upon set my hand and seal of office of the Harrison County Clerk in the City of Cynthiana, County of Harrison this the 22nd day of October, 2014.

Linda B. Furnish
Harrison County Clerk

School District Harrison County # 241
Contact Name Julie Asber
Contact Number (859)234-7110

To the Kentucky Board of Education, Frankfort, KY:

In Compliance with Kentucky Revised Statutes and the regulations of the Kentucky Board of Education, we, the board of education of the above named school district, hereby submit for your approval the following tax rates levied on 09/10/2014.

For rates that exceeded compensating and HB 940 tax rates, the notice and hearing requirements of KRS 160.470(7)(b) & (c) published at least twice for two (2) consecutive weeks, in the newspaper of largest circulation in the county, and the public hearing which shall be held not less than seven (7) days nor more than ten (10) days after the day that the second advertisement is published, have been met.

An advertisement was placed in the Cynthiana Democrat newspaper on 08/27/2014 (date of first advertisement) and 09/03/2014 (date of second advertisement).

The public hearing was held on 09/10/2014.

For rates subject to recall, an additional advertisement was made on within 7 days of the hearing as required by KRS 160.470(8). Once the forty-five (45) days have passed since the rate was levied, we will send notification of whether a valid petition was presented. If a valid petition was presented, we will indicate whether we intend to place the issue before the voters for approval.

If advertisement was required, the rates levied do not exceed the proposed rates advertised.

Kentucky Afield Outdoors:

Blue Water Trails - South Fork Licking River

By LEE MCCLELLAN,
GUEST COLUMNIST

The pioneers settling along the verdant South Fork of Licking River in what is now Harrison County had a tenuous hold on their lands in 1780. The privations of carving crude civilization out of wilderness, the threat of attack by enraged Shawnee or their ilk, in addition to the whirlwind of the western theater of the Revolutionary War, all combined for a tough life.

A threat emanating from the north in the early summer of that year would eventually bring terror to this corner of the world. British Capt. Henry Bird and his Native American allies moved south from Detroit, crossed the Ohio River and moved into central Kentucky, via the Licking River system. A number of families, many of them Pennsylvania German, lived along the South Fork of Licking River in Ruddle's Station, near what is now Lair, Kentucky.

Capt. Bird brought cannons with him and quickly blasted holes in the wooden fort, leading to its quick surrender. The invaders also took nearby Martin's Station in Bourbon County and marched most of the captives from both forts to Detroit, where they remained prisoners until the end of the war.

Two floats on the South Fork of Licking River give a modern Kentuckian an understanding why the pioneers braved such challenges to settle this pastoral and rich river valley. The canopy that envelopes much of the river provides spectacular scenery as the autumn colors reach their zenith. The gentle flow of the South Licking in fall makes a perfect autumn paddling destination, suitable for families and beginners. The river also holds a bountiful population of smallmouth and rock bass as well as large-mouth bass and crappie in the impounded sections.

The first float begins in Lair at the boat ramp beside the bridge over the river on Old Lair Road. The take-out is 5 miles downstream at the Terry Dam Ramp, also called the Airport Ramp, on Engineer Road via Infirmary Road and KY 982. Make sure to veer left onto Engineer Road just after crossing the railroad tracks on Infirmary Road to reach the ramp. The South Fork of Licking River braids considerably at the beginning of this float. The pockets of deeper water in these braids hold smallmouth bass at times.

Paddlers may notice some abandoned brick pump houses on the right (looking downstream) just after launching. These are ruins of the Old Lewis Hunter Distillery which fermented its last batch of mash in the mid-1970s. Its main label was Old Lewis Hunter, aged 6 years. Distilling at this location began before the Civil War.

As the days shorten and water temperatures drop, a stream smallmouth bass migrate toward the deeper holes with less current where they spend winter. After the braided stretch of water, South Licking enters a series of longer, deeper holes that anglers should target in fall for smallmouth bass.

As flowing water cools in autumn, smallmouth prefer lures with subtle action and a deliberate retrieve. A 4-inch finesse worm in black or hues of brown, green and gold does well. A 3-inch Senko-style soft plastic bait in the same colors that looks like a small cigar in the water also shines.

The flowing water at the head and tail end of these deep holes is the place to catch fall smallmouth bass in South Licking. Simply toss these lures into this flowing water and do nothing but reel enough to keep your line tight and let the water move the lure until you feel the thump of a smallmouth strike.

After a series of medium-depth holes interrupted by shallow bars, the river bends to the right and enters a long, deep hole. The flowing ends of this hole should be probed for smallmouth bass, while the sunken tree tops in the deep water hold large-mouth bass.

At the end of this long, current-free hole, Paddy's Run enters South Licking on the right. The paddler enters a warren that provides great beauty from the changing leaves arching over the river. The river breaks into flowing braids for an extended stretch that require some dragging at low water before entering a deeper section.

The deeper water marks the beginning of the pool formed by Terry

Dam downstream. This transitional section is the best water on this float for smallmouth bass.

The river soon slows to stillness and anglers may catch a few of the surprisingly big large-mouth bass in this deep, placid pool. A weightless clown-colored soft plastic jerkbait rigged weedless and slowly fished in the many downed tree tops draws strikes.

As the river gently bends to the left, look for the takeout on the left.

The next float begins well downstream below Robinson Dam and ends just upstream of the low-head dam at the town of Berry. South Licking has many low-head dams, a remnant of a once vital bourbon distilling industry along the river. Low-head dams pose exceedingly dangerous conditions for paddlers and should be avoided at all costs.

The put-in for this 5-mile float is below Robinson Dam, adjacent to the parking lot for the Robinson Dam Ramp off Robinson Road. This section has many mature trees, making a picturesque float with the fall colors. The take-out is on a small spur road off KY 1032, just across the river from Berry.

The beginning of this float features many medium-depth pools that occasionally constrict and increase the river's flow. These flowing areas hold smallmouth bass.

Soon, South Licking bends to the right and constricts. A large swatch of water willow rings the right bank and a roar from water dropping in elevation greets the paddler's ears.

This stretch is the best smallmouth bass water on this float. Anglers should probe this water with a 4-inch pumpkin-seed with green flake soft plastic lizard rigged on a 1/8-ounce leadhead. The deeper water just below the sharp drop, seemingly a long abandoned mill dam, is a good place to try as well.

After a series of holes punctuated by rock bars, the river makes a hard bend to the left. The river gains some depth and soon stops flowing at all, reflecting the influence of the low-head dam at Berry. This transitional area is a fantastic fall spot to probe for smallmouth bass.

The pool formed by the low-head dam at Berry is long and deep. The weightless soft plastic jerkbait works well in this stretch, fished in the abundant woody cover. The river then makes a long bend to the right.

At the end of this bend, Raven Creek enters South Licking on the left. The woody cover in mouth of this creek holds large-mouth, spotted bass and white crappie. A small, minnow-shaped hard plastic jerkbait worked near the woody cover scores all three of these species.

After Raven Creek, paddlers should move to the left side of the river. Look for a log sticking out from the bank and a muddy foot path leading up the bank. This is the take-out. Detritus collected by the log makes the upstream side fairly easy to get out of a canoe or kayak. The low-head dam at Berry is just downstream of this take-out.

Paddlers may also put in and paddle upstream for slackwater fishing for largemouth and spotted bass, catfish and crappie at Robinson Ramp just above Robinson Dam. The Cynthiana Boat Ramp on River Road near downtown Cynthiana and the carry-down access at the Pendleton County Athletic Park in Falmouth also provide access. Paddlers may continue upstream through these pools and catch smallmouth bass in their flowing headwaters.

Cynthiana has abundant accommodations for paddlers.

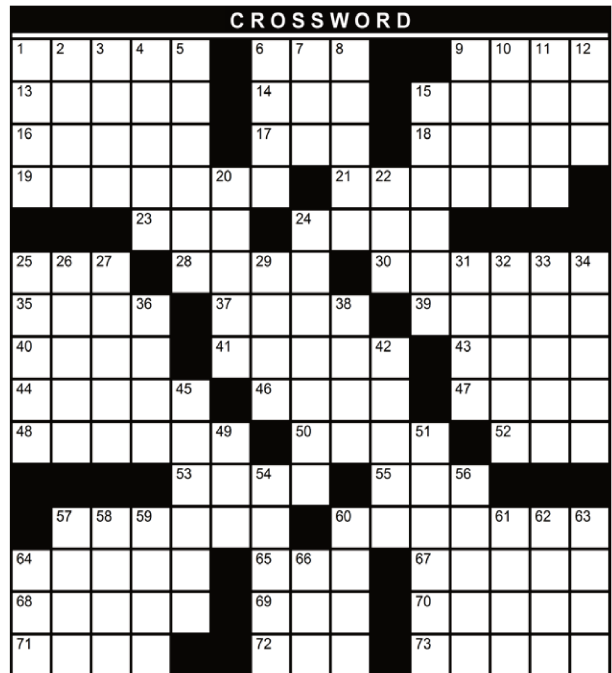

Cynthiana's Setter Ridge Outfitters is located at 582 Airfield Lane near the Cynthiana-Harrison County Airport.

Setter Ridge provides canoe and kayak trips from six-mile day trips to overnight excursions.

Owner Ray Schweitzer said seasonal trips are available on the South Fork of the Licking River and the Main Licking. Trips are scheduled April 1 through Nov. 1. Shuttles are also available for those who have their own boats.

Thaxton's Canoe Trails in Butler offers canoe and kayak rentals, shuttles and some private access spots along the river.

Author Lee McClellan is an award-winning associate editor for Kentucky Afield magazine, the official publication of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. He is a life-long hunter and angler, with a passion for smallmouth bass fishing.

Justice Keller is honored to serve as your current Supreme Court Justice for the 6th District of Kentucky.

- Wife
- Mother
- Former Nurse
- Former Prosecutor
- Endorsed by the FOP
- 8 Years on the Bench
- Recognized for outstanding service to her community

I have been privileged and honored to serve as both your Court of Appeals Judge and Supreme Court Justice. When I was administered the Oath of Office for both positions, I swore to uphold the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this great Commonwealth.

I have given my best every day for the past eight years to do just that. I am devoted to protecting the individual rights of every single Kentuckian.

I was born and raised in my Judicial District, and have lived here all my life. As a wife, as a mother, and as a judge, I have committed my life to improving and protecting my community.

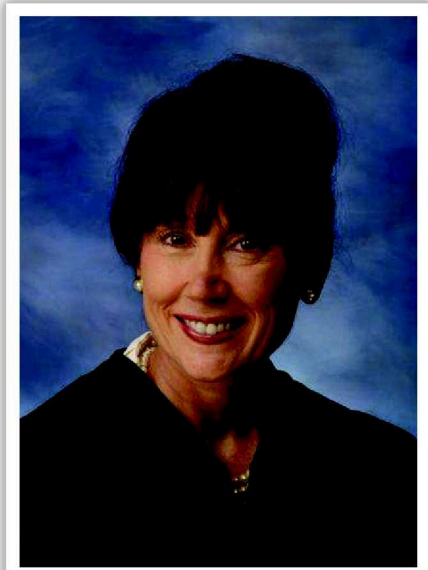

An independent judiciary is critical to our democracy. Pursuant to the Kentucky Constitution, judges are elected by non-partisan ballot.

Please allow me the privilege to continue to serve you on the Kentucky Supreme Court. I respectfully ask for your continued support throughout the rest of my current term, through this campaign, and as we work together, through the next eight-year term on the Court.

I need your vote on November 4.

My family and I thank you for your friendship and support.

Michelle M. Keller
